Course Description

Welcome to American Government! This course focuses on the origins of the United States government and how the government functions today. Students can expect to learn about the executive, legislative, and judicial branches of the American government. Additionally, we will cover how a bill becomes a law, how officials are elected, and more. Students will learn about the rights and privileges of American citizens and the role they play as individuals in a democratic republic. Students will engage in skill-based work, essays, exams, group work, projects, and discussions. The subject of this class lends itself to discussion and students are expected to share their viewpoints and listen to others in a civil manner.

Grading Policy

Assignments will be graded and returned in a timely manner to allow students a chance to build on their knowledge and stay organized. Students are expected to continually improve their work. Therefore, if a student wants to retry an assessment, they will have the opportunity to revise any written work or projects. Revised work must be completed one week from the date students received the original grade. Students may receive 5 points of extra credit per quarter by completing a Current Events Analysis.

Absent and Late Work Policy

Please make every effort to attend class on a regular basis. When you are absent you will miss out on class discussion and activities. If you are planning to be absent, please notify me ahead of time to acquire any assignments or handouts. If you are sick or have an unplanned absence, see me when you return to school. It is individual student's responsibility to get missing work! Work will be docked 10% for being late. Formative assessments will not be accepted past the end of a unit. If you are struggling in this course, please come talk to me as soon as possible!

Academic Integrity

Students are held to a high standard of excellence with regards to academic integrity. If a student is found being dishonest regarding an assessment they will receive one opportunity to redo the assessment for up to 70%. If you did not complete an assignment it is better to turn it in late rather than copy a friend's. Additionally, when submitting written work please cite sources and do not plagiarize. Anyone found cheating on a summative assignment, which may include using notes, electronic devices, or not citing sources, will also receive a call home and office referral.

Technology

Chromebooks will be used in class frequently. Chromebooks are to be used for academic use only. Students are expected to remain on task and refrain from engaging in off task behaviors. Cellphones are not to be used in class. Students must keep them in their locker or place them in the cellphone holder in classroom. If students violate the cellphone policy, I will follow the school board policy and take the phone to the office.

Welcome

I am excited to have each one of you in my course this year. I look forward to an exciting year filled with discussion. I expect each of you to come prepared for class by completing assignments, bringing materials and having an open mind. I respect each of your individual differences and I expect you to respect your classmates as well. Please let me know if you are struggling in this course and I will do my best to support you. I look forward to hearing your ideas and insights this year!
